

The New York Evening Post is much dissatisfied with President Lincoln's last call for five hundred thousand men. We are told that it "chilled the blood of the people," that "it breathed delay; it hinted at another year of war." "To threaten a peremptory draft now, when everybody believed that the war is nearly ended; to demand men for three years, when the struggle should be and must be over in six months; to call for half a million of men, when the country had, rightly or wrongly, imagined that a hundred thousand would suffice to terminate the struggle—this does appear to us to misunderstand the spirit of the American people, and to blunder." The Washington Chronicle copies this, with comments, and says, "it is certainly very strange language to be used by a loyal, and even a radically republican newspaper."

The N. Y. Times has the following from Washington: "Many of the regiments before Petersburg have not been paid for six months—none have received a cent for over four months. In consequence the greatest suffering and dissatisfaction prevail among the rank and file. The latter broke out into loud and open complaints a few days ago, when Paymasters arrived with greenbacks for Corps and Division Headquarters, but none for the soldiers." The Rochester Democrat (Republican) states that there is a great deal of dissatisfaction in the army, and that an unusual number of resignations of officers has been tendered, among whom are five generals. The Boston Advertiser also alludes to rumors it has heard to the same effect.

A letter from Michigan says: "Crops in this State, and particularly in this county and neighboring counties, are large. Corn has never looked better, and wheat is very full and heavy. Farmers are cheerful, being sure of a rich harvest. Wool is coming in in large quantities, and is of fine quality, prices ranging from ninety cents to one dollar. The wool clip is heavier than usual."

It is said that this morning a shell, fired from one of the forts around this place, struck the house of Mr. Samuel Pullman, a short distance from this place, across Hunting Creek, and exploded, killing two of his children instantly, and breaking the arm of the third one. The mother and father were in town at the time and upon hearing of the catastrophe their agony was intense, and the shrieks of the mother heartrending.

We learn that a despatch received in this place, to-day, from President Lincoln, announces that Judge E. K. Snead, arrested and confined, in Norfolk, by order of Gen. Butler, for attempting to hold a court in that place, has been unconditionally released, by orders from Washington.

The Confederate steamer Denbigh, arrived at Havana from Mobile reports a large side-wheel steamer captured while attempting to pass the Federal fleet stationed off Mobile, supposed to be the Virgin, from Havana. She also reports the running ashore and burning of the blockade runner Ivanhoe. The Confederates succeeded in saving the entire cargo and machinery of the Ivanhoe.
